Pilar Ramírez Gröbli

(born 1973 in Colombia) is writing her dissertation "Biofuel Production Conflicts and Displacement in Latin America. Sociopolitical and Artistic Impact." She studies the artistic representation and political treatment of the conflicts that surround the production of biofuels, the resulting water shortage and the displacement of native populations from extensive monoculture areas.

Back in Colombia, Ms. Ramírez obtained a Licentiate Degree in English Literature and Linguistics and a Masters in International Relations. In 2007 she graduated in Spanish, Political and Religious Studies at the University of Zürich. Since 2008 she has taught Spanish at the Secondary School of the Hottingen canton. In addition, she did an internship at the ETH Center for Security Studies in 2009. Since January 2010 she has been a research assistant for Prof. Yvette Sánchez and a Language Instructor at HSG.
